

CLUBWOMEN HEAR STORY OF GERMAN FLEET'S SURRENDER

Reports of Various Women's Bodies Heard and Large Audience Listens to Captain Beach, of U. S. S. New York--Good Music Featured.

The quarterly open meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs, held on Saturday afternoon at the Chapel of the First Dutch Church, was attended by an unusually large number of people, many being attracted to hear Captain Edward Beach, of the U. S. S. Flagship New York, tell of the surrender of the German Fleet.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Hyman Rousa. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Fowler, showed a balance in the treasury of $35.58. It was announced that three new members had been added to the list of individual members of the Federation; Mrs. Hillis, Mrs. Metzger and Mrs. Wood. Brief reports were given by the various literary clubs making up the federation and by the Sunshine Society, all showing more or less philanthropic work in connection with their literary pursuits.

Following the reports, Miss Mary Dwyer of the Woman's Joint Legislative protection of working women, addressed the meeting. She spoke of the interest of remedial legislation looking for the betterment of working conditions for women and girls in our own state. The particular measures she advocated were: equal pay for equal work for women and men; health insurance; protection for women in transportation and elevator jobs; better sanitary conditions for office workers. Miss Dwyer cited several specific instances to prove the need of these legislative measures, and it was voted that the Federation ask Miss Mary L. Wood, state legislative representative for the New York Federation to look into the matter and further advise with the local Federation as to the necessary and advisable action to be taken. This mode of procedure having been on various occasions, advocated by one or another of the presidents of the New York State Federation.

Following Miss Dwyer's remarks, Mrs. Rousa announced that the Atherton Club would be the hostess for the afternoon, and introduced the president of that club, Miss Lillian Nelson, who after the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, called attention to the fact that one object above most others, a nation's flag, whether our own or that of our allies at present, is the forth at once a feeling of "spirit." The chapel was by the 25, handsomely and artistically decorated with large flags of both the United States and the allied nations, but Miss Nelson said it was one flag upon the desk that she particularly wished to call the attention of all present. It had seen "olive service on the Destroyer." "Takes for nineteen months, and ad been sent to Mrs. T. J. Hickey, her son, Commander Hickey, who had graciously loaned it to the occasion. Still apropos of the flag, Miss Nelson gave a fine reading of a little poem descriptive of the reception of the American flag by a family of little French children. "This was indeed touching. This was followed by an inspiring tenor solo, sung by Private Robert Hawesky, recently returned from Camp Jackson, whose spirited and musically rendition of "Invictus," by Bruno Hahn so delighted the audience that he was obliged to give an encore. His became were charmed with his staccato "There's a Long, Long Trail," by Nettie Burhans accompanied Mr. Hawesky.

Miss Nelson then introduced Captain Edward Beach of the flagship New York, first calling to mind that a new birth of freedom for which we have just been fighting, we had had reason to be more than proud of both our army and navy, even though the latter branch of our fighting service had won a bloodless victory.

Captain Beach said that he felt he must apologize for having no prepared address to give his audience, inasmuch as he had already been assigned as commandant of the cruiser New Island, California, in so short a time that it had been quite impossible to prepare any address. In spite of this fact, Captain Beach stated well that any person fully and completely conversant with the life work is always prepared to tell of the same to a sympathetic and interested audience, such as Captain Beach surely had, there being many ladies present.

The captain further stated that what he was about to say about the United States navy, he would say, not as a naval officer, but as a citizen and an American.

While the main topic on which he had been asked to speak was "The Surrender of the German Navy," he proposed that they with a brief but thoroughly illuminating history of the United States Navy up to the time of the present war, commencing with the fact that the history of our navy was always had some of the most brilliant fighting men of the world. The speaker called attention to the fact that in the Spanish-

American war, Spain had suffered no disgrace though overcome in naval action, for knowing that she was outnumbered by the enemy, she had fought bravely and gallantly, putting up a losing fight. Because of this Admiral Cervera was awarded the honors of war at the time of his surrender. Compared to the surrender of the German navy, and Admiral Meurer, the difference was indeed marked, for while in the latter instance absolute courtesy was observed by both British and American officers, no honor of war such as might be deserved by a respected foe was given the German admiral and his staff.

Captain Beach noted that the five American ships, under the command of Admiral Rodman, the New York, the Texas, the Wyoming, the Arkansas and the Florida, were all a part of the grand fleet of Admiral Beatty of Great Britain. In fact they were really a part of the British navy. He then told much of interest relative to the great base of this British navy at Scapa Flow in the Orkney Islands, where there was ample room for some thousand ships; room to maneuver. In fact it was an ideal spot, geographically and otherwise, except for the weather, which was abominable beyond words, the sun never being seen for fog, rain, mist and gales, piling up to the great banks of clouds. Four years the British navy remained there, always ready, and always instantly and absolutely informed, as far as Admiral Beatty was concerned, as to every move of the German navy. The speaker's description of the life of the men on ship board during the time of the war, and the fact that they seemed not to be able to praise the perfection of the English system of naval discipline and action. Apparently it was, according to Captain Beach, as near to being perfect as anything human could be. Which fact alone was responsible for the remarkable condition of no accidents, with all of the maneuvering and drilling, absolutely in the dark in every sense, of the many monster ships, so near each other.

While all were pleased at the news of the armistice, and according to the captain's description its celebration aboard the New York was quite as noisy and jubilant as the one Kingstonians recall, the British, especially the officers, were so downcast over the prospect of having no opportunity to engage the enemy that they had to have considerable cheering up to make them at all reconciled. It was not that they wanted to sacrifice the lives of men, but recalling the two times when the German navy, under cover of dense fog did venture forth to be chased back to their base, with far more of a loss of men than was generally known, the British naval officers could but regret their inability to fight it out to a conclusion worthy of men. It was cold comfort to the British that the Germans had not the nerve to openly engage in battle.

When it was announced that the surrender was to take place, orders were issued by Admiral Beatty that when the German admiral and his staff came aboard ship to learn of the terms of the armistice, they were to be treated courteously, but with no honors of war whatever. In accordance they were met at the gang plank and saluted by an officer who escorted them to a room on ship board, where Admiral Beatty and his officers awaited them. After the most formal greeting, Admiral Meurer was notified that he or his staff officers might ask any information desired as to the terms of the armistice, and they would be answered, but there would be no argument as to those terms.

When lunch time came and they were far from finishing the matter, one of the ship's men reported the German admiral and his officers to a room where a most ample repast was served, ready for them, and when all had entered the room, the door was closed and they were left entirely to themselves. The scorn on Captain Beach's face was most expressive as he told of the amount of food, wine, beer, etc., which was consumed by the men, making an incalculable surrender as to forever destroy their nation, whose appetites still stayed by them to the last. Having concluded the reading of the terms of the armistice, Admiral Beatty asked simply "do you accept--rejoice them?" and Admiral Meurer's reply was "I accept them."

They were then allowed to return to their ships until the list of German ships was received. The actual surrender occurred. The orders came from Admiral Beatty for the British and American ships to go out in squadrons, first it looked like confusion when Admiral Beatty admitted that at first it looked like confusion when the squadrons went out in squadrons, they appeared two long straight, parallel lines of vessels. The German ships passed between these lines, so the British navy, including the American ships, were either side of the German vessels, and all came out as there was a partial confusion felt in the respectability to the surrender. Officers from the vessels of the British navy were then detailed to go aboard the surrendered ships and in-struct them to see if all requirements of the armistice had been met. But,

WM. HOHENZOLLERN CELEBRATES BIRTH

Sixty-Year-Old Ex-Kaiser At Amerongen And His Wife Goes To Potsdam Today, Probably On Political Mission.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 27.—Following a quiet celebration of the ex-kaiser's sixtieth birthday at Amerongen castle, the former German emperor will return to Potsdam "as a result of the success of the ex-kaiser's faithful few in the recent German election," said an Amsterdam dispatch today.

Speculation is rife as to whether the former kaiser, who still cherishes hopes that his eldest grandson may resume the imperial crown, is returning as the ex-kaiser's courier to tell the "faithful few" not to despair for the Hohenzollerns as "the body is not dead even if the head has been sacrificed," the dispatch added. It is pointed out that the ex-kaiser is a keen politician but probably one of the worst advisers the former emperor ever had.

William Hohenzollern was born on January 27, 1859.

DUBLIN IRISHMEN SET UP REPUBLIC

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 27.—Going to a small uninhabited island near Dublin Bay, a few prominent residents of Dublin declared it a republic and prepared an address to the free nations of the world, according to a dispatch from Dublin today.

"When Irishmen crack jokes such as this it is certain that the political leaders have blundered," said the Daily Mail in commenting upon the affair.

BELIEVE BODY THAT OF SUICIDE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Luckensack, N. J., Jan. 27.—The gruesome discovery by two rascally hangers of the partly decomposed body of a woman, richly dressed and evidently a person of some culture and refinement, is today engaging the authorities of Bergen county. The body was found on the edge of the Palisades, in the region known as Englewood Cliffs, yesterday morning. The authorities believe the woman has been dead for a month.

Prosecutor Luckin, of Bergen county, believes the woman committed suicide.

Reference Sells Plattekill Land.

S. G. Carpenter, as referee, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock sold at the court house at auction, under a judgment of foreclosure, in the action of Flossie M. McCready against Jennie Walker and others, 80 acres of land in the town of Plattekill. It was struck off for $1,000 to an agent for plaintiff.

Speaks at Stone Ridge.

Capt. Louis De La Vergne, U. S. A., will speak on the "World's War" at Grange Hall, Stone Ridge, on Wednesday evening, January 28, to which the public is invited. A previous notice erroneously stated that this address was to be delivered at Lake Katrine.

These officers were instructed to have as little as possible to say to any one on the ships they inspected. No ranking officers of the British or American fleets had even a sight of the German officers, but the lieutenant whom Captain Beach sent out reported to him disorder, all lack of discipline, the ship in charge of three members of the soldiers and workers' councils, and the officers terribly cast down, while the sailors seemed greatly pleased. Captain Beach said that this surrender of these 74 splendid great ships was a disgrace from which no nation could ever fully recover.

In closing, the speaker reminded his hearers of the frightful loss of life which this war has entailed upon the nations of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium and our own country, and said that when Miss Nelson spoke of a new birth of freedom his mind at once reverted to Alphonse Daudet, whose great novel "Le Capitaine Corcoran" was a story of a man who had passed through this terrible war.

"It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from this hour we take increased action to that cause for which they gave their lives, and that we have richly resolved that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that the government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

IN THE SERVICE OF OUR COUNTRY

PRIVATE FRANCIS M. FINNERTY.

Private F. M. Finnerty has his honorable discharge from the military service of the U. S. S. His residence is at No. 21 East Pierpont street, and he is back on the section gang on the U. & D. R. R. Private Finnerty was stationed at Camp McClellan, Annapolis, Md.

Private Walter C. Black, 306th Infantry, who has been in a hospital in France since August, writes that he is recovering and hopes soon to be transferred to a seaport.

Private Eugene Cornwell, Company F, 51st Pioneer Infantry, former chief clerk in the business office of The Freeman, writes from Gils, Germany, that he is near the Rhine and finds very beautiful scenery along the Moselle river. There has been scarcely any snow.

William Ingram of 422 Wilbur avenue received a telegram Sunday morning from his son, Charles Ingram, a member of the 102nd Trench Mortar Battery, 27th Division, A. E. F., that he had arrived safely in New York from France and will go to Base Hospital, Camp Merritt. Private Ingram left with Company M and at Spanghagen, S. C., with two others transferred to the Trench Mortar Battery.

Private Daniel J. Linden, 12th Artillery, the artillery regiment attached to the famous Second Division, of which "the Marines" made such a fine record at Chateau-Thierry are a part, writes from Germany that he came through the fighting alive and in good health. He had not been heard from in over three months. His letters evidently having been lost on the way.

Sergeant R. M. Black, 23rd Field Battalion, Signal Corps, who has been at Camp Meade, Md., since October, has been honorably discharged and arrived at his home in Eddyville on Sunday. Sergeant Black was to have sailed for France on October 15th with the Eleventh Division, but the influenza epidemic delayed the sailing. The division was awaiting orders to sail when the armistice was signed.

Private Henry Munch, who returned from overseas a week ago and is now in a demobilization camp, spent Sunday at his home in this city on pass. He expects to be discharged in about a week. Private Munch is one of the few with whom army life did not agree and has lost nearly 100 pounds in weight which he hopes to regain when he returns to his former position in The Freeman office.

Two letters from Private Percy Fairbrother, Sixth Marines, were received this morning by his mother in Port Ewen. These letters were the first received from Private Fairbrother since last summer, others evidently having been lost, owing to a fear that he was either dead or seriously wounded, as his allotment was stopped in October. His regiment, now in Germany, was one of the regiments that "stopped them at the Marne" last June.

Lauren Bell of the Submarine L-7, writes interestingly of his travels. He left Europe soon after the signing of the armistice, stopped at the Azores Islands, Bermuda, and the Panama Canal Zone. He is now on his way to San Francisco, where he expects to arrive by the middle of February. He is very pleased to be wearing one of the gold war chevrons on his sleeve. He particularly boasts of the royal time at Christmas given by the soldiers and sailors of the U. S. M. C. A. at Christlode.

D. G. Atkins of this city received a letter this morning from his brother, Major H. T. Atkins, who is now in charge of Education Hospital No. 4, Germany. Major Atkins states in his letter that as yet he has been unable to locate any Kingstons here. This is a doubt due to the fact that he does not realize the letters that have been written him from this camp, local K. of C. as they have sent him a large number of addresses of the local men that are now in the same town with the Army of Occupation. A queer coincidence in this affair is that his nephew, Calvin Atkins, has been writing home in inquiry of his uncle's address so that he might try and locate him and now it appears they have been in the same town for some time. They have been unable to find each other, but they have now been able to find each other. When they have and their relatives in this city but the last letter which was received yesterday and written December 22, 1918, the nephew and his brother had not been united.

ORDER COMES FAST IN GERMANY

Wonderful Progress Made Toward Stabilizing Country on Sound Peace Basis as Anarchy Is Put Down.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
The Hague, Jan. 27.—Despite alarmist reports Germany is "holding herself" almost miraculously. The elections have had a sobering effect and the outbreak since then in Berlin and elsewhere have been parodic. The people's temper is stabilizing and the Spartacists and Independents, reading the handwriting on the wall, seem inclined to conciliate themselves with the majority Socialists.

The government thus made firmer and freer to deal with economics. The Bolshevik and Polish bagaboos are disappearing. Level headed business men are preparing for the future. One of the first signs of the return to normal times is seen in the readiness to arbitrate with the strikers and the eagerness of the better elements to support the authorities for the best interests of the country.

There is confidence in the justice of a league of nations as proposed by President Wilson and belief that Germany will be admitted. It is also felt that there is a prospect of the early shipment of food essentials from America.

The fact that in the past few days armed bands have been pillaging in Berlin does not signify that anarchy is slackening. There are so many problems to settle, it is pointed out, that absolute order cannot be brought about overnight.

The German government is increasing the meat ration but is reducing the potato ration.

Beginning on February 24 the streets of Berlin will be darkened at 11 p. m. to save coal.

Neutrals who have investigated declare that it will be easier for Germany to reorganize than it was for the North and South to become unified in the United States after the Civil War.

LIGHT ON GERMAN FOOD SITUATION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The German food situation as it affects the rural population is far from hopeless but in the cities and towns conditions are desperate and conducive to continued anarchy, confidential reports to the state department today disclosed.

The last harvest in Germany was far below the ten-year average, especially for foodstuffs such as wheat, rye and barley. The oat harvest was poor and the potato crop was considerably below the average.

Conditions in the larger cities are rapidly becoming more chaotic because the lack of transportation facilities retards the movement of food supplies from the country districts.

People in the country districts, it is declared, have enough food to carry them through to another harvest. In cities the very old and the very young are suffering most from malnutrition for lack of necessities. There is said to be a reasonable supply of food for animals.

Uster Men Honor Italy.

At the mass meeting held at the Metropolitan Opera House in the city of New York on Sunday evening, in recognition of the distinguished and important part taken by Italy in the great war, and in promotion of good relations with that country, Judge Clearwater served as a member of the honorary committee to receive the distinguished guests of the society. Former Uster county men on the committee were Judge Charles Evans Hughes and Thomas W. Lamont, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company.

Matches Scarce in France.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Jan. 10, (by mail).—There is a match shortage in France. In some towns it is so acute that fires are kept burning continually in order that people may obtain firewood. Usually disabled wounded soldiers are placed in charge of these braziers and they have received the official title of "fire keepers." They are paid by the towns employing them.

K. of C. Dance Tonight.

ROYALISTS GAIN IN PORTUGAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 27.—The Portuguese royalists at Oporto have issued a decree revoking all legislation passed since the monarchist revolution began, said an Oporto dispatch to the Daily Mail. The treaties are still maintained, however.

Coimbra, Villareal, Beaganza and Vizeu are in the hands of the royalists. It was officially announced by their leaders in northern Portugal.

WHO WILL GET COMPANY FUNDS?

Criticism of Plan to Turn Over National Guard and National Army Units Savings to Regular Army.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 27.—Will the regular army become a war profiteer through the acquisition of company funds left by the demobilization of National Guard and National Army organizations?

This is the question being asked by many officers and men who have left the service and are interested in the disposition of surplus funds which were on hand when the demobilization orders were received. According to a circular issued recently by the war department, all funds of whatever nature except those accruing from ration savings would be disposed of at the discretion of the secretary of war and it is understood that the commission on training camp activities is studying with a view to making recommendations to the secretary. If the rule heretofore followed in army financial transactions of a like character is adhered to, the funds will revert to the regular establishment.

That considerable criticism will result of this course is followed is admitted. The nucleus of many of these accounts was acquired by the National Guard organizations before they were sworn into the federal service and many National Army organizations have raised huge amounts of money in various ways.

Upon entering Rheims the presidential party was greeted by the mayor with a great show of cordiality. President and Mrs. Wilson and the others in the party were then escorted to the cathedral. They were personally conducted through the shell wrecked edifice by a high prelate who showed the ruinous handiwork of the Huns.

The president was very sympathetic and spent more than half an hour in the structure. He was presented with a panel from the central window containing priceless stained glass, the gift being made in the name of the people of Rheims.

DADDY'S EVENING TALK

BY MARY GRAMMOND

ELEPHANT'S TOOTHACHE.

"An elephant in the zoo," said Daddy, "had had a tooth ache for two weeks."

"That sounds strange," said Nancy. "It's true, though," said Daddy. "I know it must be," said Nancy.

"For you never tell us stories about animals which aren't true. But somehow I had never thought of an elephant having a tooth ache. Tooth ache seems to belong to children."

"They don't want it to belong to them, though," said Nick.

"And it belongs to grown-ups too," said Daddy. "I've had a tooth ache myself."

"Nancy speaks," said Nick, "as though tooth aches were something one would be proud to own, such as having toys belong to us."

"I don't mean that," said Nancy, "but I was thinking that only the other day I had a tooth ache and had to go to the dentist. And when I think of elephants I think of them as eating peanuts and doing tricks."

"Well, this poor elephant had a tooth ache," said Daddy. "He was very brave about the pain and didn't make any fuss, but he simply couldn't eat. He hardly ate a thing for two whole weeks."

"The tooth hurt him all this time, and to have a tooth ache for two weeks is pretty bad, for everyone knows that an hour of a tooth ache is far from pleasant."

Nancy nodded her head.

"Well, the keeper didn't know at first what could be the matter with the elephant."

"Poor old Gogo," he said, "you don't seem to enjoy your food any more. You must have indigestion. Your food doesn't tempt you any more. I'll try to see if I can't give you something which will make you feel like eating."

"So the keeper gave the elephant a tonic and put some medicine in his food—so he wouldn't notice it—but so it would do him good."

"But the medicine didn't do the elephant any good and still he just played with his food. Then the keeper called in the doctor and the doctor said, 'We'd better call in the zoo dentist, for he may have something the matter with his teeth. He tries to eat, I notice, and it seems to hurt him.'"

"But he doesn't groan or moan," said the keeper. "Surely if he had tooth ache we would notice it."

"Animals often don't make any fuss about pain," said the doctor.

"I know that," said the keeper.

"I may be wrong," said the zoo doctor, "but somehow I have an idea it is his teeth."

"So they called the zoo dentist and he opened the elephant's mouth. Then they knew that the elephant had something the matter with his teeth for it was all he could do to open his mouth."

"He tried very hard and was as patient as could be. His poor mouth was very much swollen inside and the zoo dentist said, 'He has a very bad tooth. His mouth is so swollen that he hasn't been able to eat—that has been the trouble.'"

"And the keeper looked at the elephant and said, 'Brave Gogo. For two weeks you've had a tooth ache and you haven't moaned once. It's more than I could have done.'"

"We'll fix this right away, so he won't have any more pain," said the zoo dentist.

"So they put something in the tooth and all around it so the elephant wouldn't feel any pain at all. It made it feel quite dull and the throbbing which he had felt for two weeks went away."

"In a very few minutes, with the help of an instrument which made the elephant shake a little nervously as he saw it (for he couldn't imagine what it might be), out came the tooth."

"There," said the zoo dentist, "you will have no more pain."

"In a few days Gogo was himself again. The soreness had all gone away and he was eating once more—and eating the most delicious of dishes for the keeper said,

"I want to reward you all I can, as you're the bravest creature I've ever known!"

If You Would Have Flowers.
The Golden Rule is worth little more than any other rule as long as it is only a theory. The seed of the most perfect flower that ever opened to the sun is worth no more than a squashed seed, unless it is planted. Put your seed into the earth and your theory into life till you have blossoms in abundance.—Girl's Companion.

Give the Best That's in You.
The man who persistently and determinedly fills his position in the best possible way will eventually succeed from a temporary standpoint, and to mention the good he is doing by setting such an example, and his attitude gain in character and self-respect.

Love and Home

By MILDRED WHITE

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union.)

The cheerless drip, drip, of a fall rain sounded against the window and the man went gropingly to draw the curtain. When he had lighted the gas he looked wearily around the disordered kitchen.

Dishes from his hastily prepared dinner still littered the sink, the clothes table was uninviting for the coming meal. Jared sighed as he went about his accustomed duties. Many years had passed since Lida had taken her angry departure, neglectful, silent years, yet his memories were filled with the old haunting love. She had been such a brilliant, joyous creature, the early years of their married life had passed like a too-perfect dream.

Looking back it seemed too pitiable to be true. Lida had longed for beautiful things in her home, which Jared's constant toil could not manage to procure. She had been patient with things as they were until Sylvia came—Sylvia the baby, who was to be the dominating thought of her mother's life. Nothing could be fine enough for Sylvia. Perhaps Lida had built her ideal of her daughter's future around the life of a novel heroine of whom she had been reading.

Little Sylvia must live the broader more fortunate life of this Sylvia of romance. In loveliness, the girl promised to equal her prototype. And as Sylvia grew happily among the flowers of her mother's garden, the simplicity of the little home became to Lida unbearable. When Jared sadly refused each new request for furniture or remodeling, Lida would relapse into sullen silence. Sylvia was her father's comfort then. With self-sacrificing effort he had purchased, secretly, a piano.

Jared could not know that the polished instrument had merely served to accentuate its shabby surroundings. After a discouraging day of tears upon Lida's part and angry retort upon his own, his wife had carried out her long threatened purpose and left him. How she managed to support herself and the child in the city, Jared did not know. When he heard from her again it was but a brief note announcing their daughter's marriage.

Sylvia had written to him through the years, a line now and then telling merely of her work at school. Jared had not tried to see her; his heart was too sore. And at eighteen Sylvia married. Lida, he knew, made her home with the daughter.

Ten years he had lived alone in the little-despised house and ten lonely years had made of Jared an old man. The kettle was singing over the fire this fall evening as he went to answer a summons at the unused front door. Into the narrow hall came a man's tall figure.

"I stopped," said a pleasant voice, "to see if I might find supper and shelter in your home. The road is almost impassable. I shall not try to run my car any farther in this direction."

"I am alone," Jared mumbled, "my cooking is pretty bad. But—my voice shook with eagerness. "If you would cure to stop over, I'd be mighty glad of your company."

When the automobile had been run into the barn the old disappointed man, and the young successful one, sat opposite each other at the supper table. The lack of all that was tempting seemed not to affect the good nature of the visitor.

Leaning back, smoking his cigar, he quizzed Jared pleasantly as to his solitary condition. And in the unusual luxury of a sympathetic listener, Jared found himself telling all that had passed.

Strangely enough, the unburdening proved a relief.

"When you speak of your wife," the man said musingly, "your voice has a softened tone, as though her perversity had failed to kill your love."

Jared's eyes lost their hopeless light as he looked toward a portrait of Lida upon the wall.

"I shall always love her," he answered simply.

When the stranger had gone the old man sat brooding in the lamplight. As the kitchen door opened creakingly, Jared drew his trembling fingers from his eyes, then with a wordless cry he arose to his feet.

Lida stood there in the doorway—a changed and still a dearly familiar Lida. Her black hair had turned to softened white, and Lida's black eyes had softened as mysteriously as her hair.

"Jared," she said humbly, "I have come back to stay, if you will take me. There is no satisfaction apart from you—anywhere. For years I have borne the penalty of my desertion."

"It was Sylvia who discovered the cause of my unhappiness. Love has taught her much, so she sent her husband on tonight to find if you could still be noble enough to forgive. If you want me, Jared, Sylvia and John will be here later to rejoice in our reconciliation. They have great plans for our future comfort in this old home. I have learned my lesson, dear. Home is where the heart is; no other can compensate."

"And love," said Jared, "forgiveth all things." Then he folded his wife in his arms.

Too Old for Little Folk.

An Indianapolis teacher in the early thirties was recently transferred from the first primary to teach in one of the upper grades of the same building. Most of the youngsters missed her, but it took little Carl L., a particularly bright youngster, to explain.

"You see, Miss Anne used to teach us in the first grade," he told one of the other teachers, "but she just got too old to teach the little children and had to go up to teach the big ones."

Opened by Mistake.

I sent a friend of mine in the army a box of cookies, candy, and gum. When it came he was on sentry duty. Two of his friends opened the box and in the next letter we received he said: "Thanks for the empty box you sent me."—Chicago Tribune.

What He Got.

Kind, Strange Old Lady—And what did you get for Christmas, little boy? Little Boy—Why, I got dis-dis-dis-er.

K. S. O. L.—Oh, tut, tut, my boy, not dis; you should say 'this.' Little Boy—Well, if you know so much about it, I got this disappointed.

Not Half.

WURTS ST. BAPTIST EVANGELIST SERVICE

WILSON A. PUGSLEY.

Last evening a large congregation attended the evangelistic services held at the Wurts Street Baptist Church. The services are being conducted by Wilson A. Pugsley of New York city, a noted evangelist, who has traveled from ocean to ocean and addressed thousands in the United States and Canada. He is also assisted by his wife, who works among the women and children in the community. The text of his sermon Sunday evening was the twenty-third psalm. He is a very eloquent and forceful speaker and all who attend the services which are being held every evening excepting Monday evening, will surely want the opportunity of hearing him again. Everybody welcome.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, Jan. 27.—The members of the Epworth League of the M. E. church will hold a social in the church, Wednesday evening, January 28th.

Now, that the milk strike has ended, the dairymen are again resuming their dairy activities by taking the milk to the creamery. Although the farmers have had an opportunity to supply themselves with butter, conditions, as they have been adjusted, are more favorable.

The wood sawers of this place have been rather busy the past few weeks, judging from the sounds of the different engines.

H. E. Tenney has returned to Plattekill, after spending some time at Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Samuel Andrews and infant son have returned to St. Andrews, after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Birdsall.

Mrs. A. Terwilliger has been visiting her son and daughter at Newburgh.

The many friends of Bernard Wager are hoping for him to have a speedy recovery from his illness. Dr. Hadley of Walden was the attending physician.

Mrs. James Dietz and son of Fourth Binnewater were visitors at Mr. and Mrs. F. Fowler's.

Examinations were held in both schools the latter part of last week.

The topic and leader of the Epworth League meeting Sunday evening, February 24, will be "The Youngest Democracy—China." John S. 2:26. Acts 17:6. By the Rev. Seaman.

HOPE TO OPEN THEATRE MARCH 1

Manager For Keeney Playhouse On Wall Street In Town And Work Being Rushed—Comfort And Modernity Features.

Rudolph Becker, a young man with long experience as a theatrical manager, and for eight years in charge of the Frank A. Keeney Theatre at Bridgeport, Conn., which he conducted successfully, has arrived in town and is in charge of the new theatre of Mr. Keeney on Wall Street, and with Architect Reitz, who is supervising construction, daily seeing that work is expedited. It is hoped to have the theatre opening about March 1. Manager Becker will remain in town, and during his few days of residence here has made a number of friends. Several expert decorators from out of town are doing the mural and plastic decorations on the immense ceiling, the proscenium and on the side walls of the extensive lobby. The theatre is being decorated after the latest of the modern style, the forest of scaffolding is taken down this week. E. Otis Van Allen, the contractor, expects to start work of laying the concrete floor, in a few days. The heating and ventilating systems, being the most modern of their kind, have been installed, the latter being the Vent system. Through ducts in the floor warm air is forced into the building when the weather is cold, and the floor air forced out of upper ducts, insuring fresh air at all times, with uniform temperature. It is the intention of W. H. Lee of Newark, N. J., a B. Leachman Company has done the mammoth booth into which four projecting machines can be placed, and which will be absolutely fireproof is orating Company of New York, that to be built. The Miller organ, which has been here for some time, will, Wilson Company of Newark, N. J., be erected the latter part of the week, the electrical work; M. H. It cost $10,000 and can be operated either by hand or electrically. At present there will be no balcony nor gallery. The floor which will be bowl shape, free from steps, and on it will be installed about 1,500 of the latest make of comfortable seats. Six exits through wide doors at the side of the auditorium, the doors fitted with panic bolts that will make the slightest pressure, will make the theatre safe for the audience. The house can be emptied in two minutes. The exits leading to a wide walk with concrete walking bed, leading to Crown street. Over this walk are to be large electric lamps, making it as light as day. The entrance from Wall street will be an elaborate one, with the floor, lobby opening will have the floor, marble base. There will be indirect lighting from ornamental iron beams, the lamps being concealed behind cornices, a large centrepiece of leaded glass in the ceiling to be used for furnishing the light during the day, and cluster of electric lights will be concealed in the opening by it. A box office built to design by the Schwarzschilder Company, the artistic furniture manufacturer, at Chicago, this country, will come in for much deserved commendation. Push the curtains will hang at the entrance from the foyer to the auditorium. The sides of the theatre will have carpet runners and the indirect lighting system will be used throughout the Keeney Theatre. The side wall decoration is imitation silk, the entire color scheme of the house being beautiful, artistic and soothing. Edward W. ALLIES RETREAT IN NORTH RUSSIA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 27.—Bolshevik troops in northern Russia, after a three day bombardment, attacked the American and British forces at Shonkursk, on January 23d. It was officially announced today.
The Allied forces successfully evacuated Shonkursk, moving northward.

SPENCER'S TO MOVE.

Orders of Kind Here But Also Modern—To Locate Across Street.
Spencer's Business School which has occupied the Myer and National Water County Bank Buildings for many years will celebrate its thirty-third anniversary by moving into the building directly across the street, owned by Frank Forman of the Up-Date Company, this city.
The structure is three stories above the basement, and Spencer's school will occupy the second and third floors, each floor 110 feet in length. Situated at the corner of Wall and John streets it commands an extensive view and will be accessible from every direction.
The part occupied by Spencer's Business School will be equipped with all modern improvements and conveniences. The interior will have metal ceilings and hard wood floors and will be newly finished and furnished throughout. The study halls and recitation rooms will be large, light and attractive, heated by steam and lighted by electricity. Lavatories, and spacious cloak closets will be placed at the end of each floor. Fire escapes will be placed on the Wall street side of the building and all pains will be taken to promote safety, comfort and health accommodations will be provided for 250 or 300 pupils. Equipped with all of these conveniences Spencer's School will be one of the best appointed commercial schools in the country.
Spencer's Business School is the oldest commercial training institution in the city, and under Professor Kelly's efficient management and broad conception of the requirements of the business world, the school has steadily gained in prominence and prestige. From a small school situated in the inconspicuous place in Wall street in 1889 the institution will occupy one of the most up-to-date buildings in the city, and its equipment and facilities will be in keeping with its location.

Program.
Material progress is of value only in so far as it assists toward the realization of human possibilities. Industry and commerce and the social conditions, which are in a large degree depending upon them, must be regarded from the point of view of the individual member of society, and if they cramp the life of the individual, in so far as it is of economic argument will not be justified.

Salary of Chief Executive.
The compensation of the president of the United States is fixed by Congress, and may not be increased or diminished during the existing presidential term, that is, any increase or reduction of the salary or emoluments of the office can only take effect at the next term. The original salary of the office was $23,000 a year, increased in 1893 to $50,000, and in 1909 to $75,000.

X-Rays in Tuberculosis.
In the tubercular photograph, the lungs of a normal person show white—this representing the air contained in the cells of the lungs. If the lung is diseased—as in pulmonary tuberculosis—it will show dark, i. e., the cells are filled with matter. Tuberculosis is diagnosed by the spotted, mottled appearance of the affected lung.

Origin of Apple Cinnamon.
A cinnamon is a good old English dish and comes from the west Indies and is used in a great many ways. The cinnamon is a little cube that was made by drying the rough dough into solid water.

STATE WINS FLOOD CASES

170 Claims Based On Canal Structures Affected.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Jan. 27.—Three test cases determined by the State Court of Claims Saturday will have the effect of dismissing 170 claims against the state for damages resulting to property from floods along the line of the Barge Canal. These claims aggregated about $150,000.

The first test case was George Bauer's, 25 whose farm on Mud Creek near Palmyra, was flooded in 1915. He based his claim upon the contention that the Barge Canal structures erected at that point were directly responsible for the overflow. The other cases were parallel.

Attorney-General Newton, represented by Deputy John H. Clogston of Buffalo, made the defence that the overflow would have resulted in any event, whether or not the state had constructed the Barge Canal structures.

Judge William D. Cunningham of the court of claims, wrote the opinions in all three cases and Judge Fred M. Ackerson concurred.

HANVEY APPEAL DENIED.

U. & D. May Now Bring Case Before Court of Appeals.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has given a decision, denying the request of the U. & D. Railroad Company for permission to carry to the Court of Appeals the case of Leon J. Hanvey, administrator of the estate of Wm. G. C. Hanvey, against the railroad. In a lower court a judgment of $10,000 had been secured against the railroad, on account of the death of Wm. G. C. Hanvey who was struck by a train and killed at a crossing in the town of Davenport while he was driving a motor truck.

The Appellate Division had previously affirmed the above verdict. The attorneys for the Railroad Company may now ask the Court of Appeals for a consent to bring the case directly before it. Hon. W. H. Johnson of Oneonta was attorney for the railroad and O'Connor and O'Connor of Hobart for the plaintiff, Hanvey.

BEIGE DUVETYN FOR STREET

This smart gown is of beige duvetyne, embroidered in the same shade. Particularly noteworthy is the draped basque waist fastened at the side by large cloth buttons. The collar and cuffs are of Hudson seal, which also adds a touch of richness to the nobby little tie.

HOW TO WORK WITH VELVET.

Material With Pile Should Be Made With the Smooth Way of Nap Running Up.

With the great vogue for velvets and velvetens still raging there are sure to be women who are not familiar with the sewing-room knowledge of these materials. For instance, a good dressmaker knows that all goods with a pile should be made with the smooth way of the nap running up, so that when the made-up velvet hangs from the figure, the pile will fall out and give a richer effect. For this reason it is always necessary when buying velvet or velveteen to buy more than for a plain material, as the pattern can be laid on it only one way.

Velvet seams are never pressed, but always steamed. This is best done by turning a hot iron on its side, covering it with several thicknesses of damp cloth and pulling the flattened-out seam gently over the steaming cloth. Facings are more apt to give a better appearance to velvet edges than hems, which in heavier materials are inclined to be bulky and awkward. This is particularly true for the hems of the new narrow skirts. The up-turned velvet hem has a tendency to catch on the stockings and impede the progress of the wearer. Try instead to face it with a soft satin, so that it will slide easily over the stockings or shoe tops.

ABOUT MODERATE SHOE HEEL

Louis Quinze Type Regarded as One of the Conspicuous Frivolities of Feminine Dress.

One of the conspicuous frivolities of feminine dress is the extreme Louis Quinze heel. These tall, curved heels are worn on slippers and on formal footwear of a dainty, dress-up character; but street shoes have almost invariably sturdy, sensible heels in the military or so-called college style. The college heel is very low and flat—like the mannish heel—and when the rest of the shoe is smart the flat heel is very smart; but a flat heel on a poorly shaped shoe makes the foot clumsy. Most women prefer the military heel, which is something like the old style Cuban heel except that it is not quite as heavy, in outline or in actual weight.

The proper shoe for street wear with tailored costumes, notes a fashion correspondent, is of mahogany tan or black Russia with the new low heel and a long toe, attractively stitched and perforated—though wags and extra strappings of leather are omitted to conserve material. Formal footwear is slightly more dainty in type, with thinner sole and higher heel, and such boots have usually a top of buckskin or cloth in pale gray or fawn color.

Natural Nutria.
Natural nutria is much used on children's costumes this season. It is a pretty fur, something like natural beaver, but not nearly as expensive. It is made up into fetching little cravats, collars and caps—with round children's cuffs to match, of course. A snuff box just the indispensable completing touch to any wee wee's winter costume. Little caps in the russet, fawn and soft shades of the overcast army service cap are made of nutria and are matched by collars and trunks.

To Clean Marble.
To clean discolored marble, first of all wash with soap and water, then wipe dry and apply a paste made of powdered bathbrick and lemon juice. Rub it well into the discolored parts and rinse it off in clean cold water.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Jan. 27.—The Willing Workers' entertainment? Yes, it was some entertainment and then some. Preparations had been made for a large attendance but this expectation was more than realized, for standing room only was resorted to by many. Not only was our village folk out in full numbers but there were many from outside the village. A moderate share of success in carrying out the entertainment was also felt but the success achieved by those taking part was a realization that was most pleasing and satisfactory. Fond parents, doing grandparents and enthusiastic friends were all present giving an individual and team work were fine. No one can realize the success of the evening better than the worker who was in a position to observe the continual enjoyment of every feature of the play by those in the audience. A former stage manager (sic), who has reached the age when Prof. Oiler says that he should be quietly put to sleep on a back shelf, and who had himself participated in many plays, knows about the hard and persistent work involved in those taking part, after seeing this performance, wishes that he was again in the active harness, with such a number of good workers; it would be a pleasure to work with them. It was one of the very best entertainments ever seen in the village church. It has already been suggested that the play be given elsewhere.

The social hour with ice cream and cake was not the least enjoyable part of the evening. The financial success was also one to be proud of and the tidy sum of nearly fifty dollars was realized for the work of the society. Great credit must be granted to the Willing Workers and his friends, under the management of Miss Vredenburg and Miss Taggart for the pleasant entertainment afforded and the thanks of all are extended to the audience for the kindly participation. The name of the play was "Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown." The characters were as follows:

Mrs. Tubbs, laundry woman Miss Merritt.
Scottie, Quercie Shins, Punkie Dunks, Billy Bloomer, her children, Winifred Snyder, Miss Hilda Lockwood, Miss Mita Snyder, Miss Malcolm.
Miss Cingie Vine, love torn Miss Julia Lockwood.
Miss Campbell, school teacher Miss Slater.
Mrs. Hickey, a good friend Miss Cole.
Elmira Hickey, Nancy Hickey, her children, Miss Arnet, Miss Irene Snyder.
Tom Hildan, census taker Mr. Miller.
Mr. Rubbels, landlord, willing to marry Mr. Cole.
Jim, long lost son of Mrs. Tubbs Mr. Ten Eyck.
The play was in three acts. Act I, 1st.

one—Mrs. Tubbs is carrying on a laundry business as well as managing her children and keeping a boarder. The arrival of the census taker develops some amusing situations. "We are introduced to Miss Cingie Vine and Mrs. Hickey. Miss Vine is ready to fall in love at any opportunity. Mrs. Tubbs has a long lost son whom she seeks in the west. Act two—Mrs. Tubbs returns unsuccessful. Her landlord makes love to her while Cingie Vine starts a little love making on her own account. Mrs. Tubbs amuses her children and the neighborhood children by letting them play "menagerie." Mrs. Tubbs decides she will not marry Mr. Rubbels. In the last act we have some amusing ideas about Thanksgiving. Mr. Rubbels worries Mrs. Tubbs and is finally turned down. Cingie Vine comes into possession of some money. Mr. Rubbels tries to make love to her but is unsuccessful. Her money pays all debts. The lost boy returns and all ends happily.

In addition to the play there were also a song, "A Rose in No-Man's Land" by Miss Mankewitz-Crispell of Kingston and a song by Ralph Miller, entitled "Smiles." The members of the play sang "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" and interpreted in the play itself was a song by Miss Mita Snyder, several selections by Mrs. Tubbs and a recitation by Miss Arnet. Everyone of these features were most highly appreciated and enjoyed.

Fellow-Feeling.
As a well-known Scottish divine was entering a car he noticed that some of the passengers were trying to elect a drunken man. The minister promptly interposed in his behalf and soothed him into respectability for the rest of his journey. Before leaving, however, the disturber again muttered angry words to the other passengers; then, seizing the reverend doctor's hands, he exclaimed: "Good day my friend: I see you know what it is to be drunk!"

French "Immortals."
The French academy is the oldest of five academies constituting the institute of France, having been founded in 1635. It is composed of 40 members, elected for life and known as the "Forty Immortals." They rank as the leading Frenchmen of their time in literature. Their judgment and decisions in all disputed literary matters are final.

Work for Homecoming.
The homemaker should be so alert to make progress in her life work as the business or professional man. The most profitable, the most interesting study for women is the home, for in it centers all the hopes of life.

Al Jolson's Spanish Hit from "Sinbad"

"I Wonder Why She Kept on Saying Si-Si-Si-Senor"—that's the title of Al Jolson's latest, biggest "Sinbad" hit. When you hear this ditty of the Senorita and her bolero, as Jolson sings it, you won't wonder—you'll roar! It's Jolson at his very best. On the back "Oh! Susie Behave."

A 2671—85c

"The Rose of No Man's Land"

Among all the beautiful ballads that immortalize in song the heroism and sacrifice of the great war, none has a truer heart appeal than this song which glorifies the Red Cross Nurse—the "Rose of No Man's Land." Hugh Donovan sings it with rare feeling. On the back is "Over Yonder Where the Lilies Grow."

A 2670—85c

"Beautiful Ohio"—a Dreamy Moonlight Waltz

A moonlight night on the broad, rippling Ohio—a river steamer gliding along between wooded banks—the soft strains of dreamy southern music—all these are suggested in "Beautiful Ohio," a new waltz of wonderful fascination. On the back, "My Belgian Rose."

The KITCHEN CABINET

These are the gifts I ask
Of the spirit serene:
Strength for the daily task,
Courage to face the road,
Good cheer to help me bear the traveler's load.
And for the hours that come between,
An inward joy in all things heard and seen.
—Henry Van Dyke.

WHOLESOPE FOOD.

Since our education by war's necessity, we are accustomed to the use of various substitutes, and we will continue to use them in some measure, for they have proven to be satisfactory foods.

Rolls Oats Bread.—Take one and a half cups of flour, four over two cups of boiling water and let stand until lukewarm. Then add one cake of softened yeast and five cups of flour. Knead slightly, set in a warm place and let rise for two hours. Knead thoroughly, form into loaves (this will make two) and put into pans to rise. Cover well and bake 50 minutes, when it is light.

Oats Muffins.—Take two-thirds of a cup of rolled oats, one and one-half cups of flour, one cup of scalded milk, one egg, four teaspoonsful of baking powder, two tablespoonsful of melted fat, one-half teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonsful of sugar. Turn the scalded milk over the oatmeal and let stand ten minutes, then add the other ingredients with the flour sifted with the baking powder. Bake in buttered gem pans.

Left-Over Salad.—Take a cupful of poultry bits, picked from the bones, add one-half cupful of celery cut fine and one-half cupful of mayonnaise dressing. A few olives, beets or pickles will improve the salad. If the meat is coarsely chopped and mixed with the dressing and seasonings it may be molded in cups and chilled. After two or three hours unmold and serve on lettuce.

Money Lemon Pie.—Take one-half cupful of honey, three tablespoonsful of cornstarch, one egg, the grated rind of one-fourth of a lemon, one and one-fourth cups of scalded milk, one teaspoonful of fat and two tablespoonsful of lemon juice. Combine the liquid, honey, lemon rind and fat. Let boil and thicken with cornstarch which has been mixed with a little cold milk. Cook over the fire for 15 minutes, then pour over the beaten egg and cook over water five minutes. Stir in the lemon juice and when the mixture is partly cool, pour into a baked pastry shell and bake.

Relic of Long-Past Age.
While cutting peat in the Leithen headwater area, the shepherds unearthed a horn, which may have belonged to Bos primigenius or Bos longirostris, the wild ox that roamed over Britain from the glacial age to near historic times. It was found at a depth of four feet from the surface, and the shepherds also ascertained that there was a small patch of brown hair attached, which is quite probable, as the peat would act as a preservative.

GIRLS WON BOYS SWAMPED

Hudson High School Hands Drubbing To K. H. S. Basketballers But Girls Win From Liberty.

Friday night the local high school boys journeyed to Hudson where they received a defeat at the hands of the high school boys at that place. The game was fast throughout and each player did his very best for his team. The score was 36 to 14.

Webster and Smith, the local forwards, played their usual game but the opposing guards were too much for them and they did not score as many points as usual. Thompson and Whitaker, the local guards, played very fast and good and did their best to hold the opposing forwards, but they succeeded in scoring quite a bit. Meeker was at center as usual and played a fine game. Hapeman and Weiss did the scoring for Hudson.

Abe McNutt of Hudson did the refereeing for the game and he did exceptionally well. Alfred W. Buler did the scoring.

Friday night the local girls went to Liberty where they wiped up the floor with the girls of that place to the tune of 14 to 12. It was some fast and exciting game and the Liberty girls were ahead until the last quarter when Kingston forged ahead. Miss Hurley scored three field baskets, the last quarter.

Miss Hurley and Miss Hutchins, the local forwards, played exceptionally well and Miss Hutchins fed the ball to Miss Hurley, who scored twelve points. Miss Bruyn and Miss Meeker, the guards, did very good work and held the opposing forwards fairly well. Miss Kingman and Miss Kolb did their share of good work. Miss Hobart did the good work for Liberty.

Boys rules were used and the periods of time were ten minutes. The score the first quarter was 6-2 in favor of Liberty. The end of the first half was 10-2 with Liberty leading and the third quarter ended 12-6 in the same order. However, the fourth quarter made a great change in the game as Kingston won out.

Mr. Sprig of Liberty did the very efficient refereeing.

Great Britain

In 1707, on the union of Scotland, Great Britain became the official name of the British kingdom, and so constituted until the union with Ireland in 1801. Since January 1, 1801, the official name of the kingdom, including England, Wales, Ireland and Scotland, and the neighboring smaller islands, is the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

Dare to Turn Back

It often requires courage to turn back when we have taken a wrong step, but it is easier to turn back after the first step than after the second or third, and much safer and pleasanter.

We've Met the Lady

A modern travellet describes a lady with whom some of us are not wholly unfamiliar. "One moment," she says, "you think you are great chess, and the next you wonder if you've ever been presented."—Boston Transcript.

1,784,000 MEN REMAIN OVERSEAS

And 785,000 Soldiers Are Yet in Camps Here After $15,000 Have Been Sent Home—Gen. March Sees Large Force Necessary in Europe ToH Treaty Is Signed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 27.—All the American forces abroad could be returned to this country and discharged within six months, General March, chief of staff, told the senate military affairs committee this afternoon.

The 785,000 men remaining in camps in this country will be discharged before the first of March, he added.

The United States now has 1,784,000 men abroad, General March said. Whether the major portion of these will be returned during the next half year, he pointed out, depends upon the agreements reached by President Wilson with the Allies on the pooling of certain portions of Europe with Allied forces.

Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the Shipping Board, is now negotiating for the use of German ships in transporting American troops to the United States, General March said.

It is expected that with the ships Hurley will secure the war department will be able to return 300,000 a month, March explained. He indicated, however, that he firmly believed it would be necessary to re-join a large American force abroad until the final peace treaty was signed.

Since the signing of the armistice, March said, 915,000 men in camp in this country have been demobilized.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 27.—There was a fair demand for stocks at the opening today and room traders were disposed to help along a rally in the first few minutes, but the market again met a supply. Price movements generally were narrow with the majority of stocks showing declines, although Mexican Petroleum had its usual wide range, first dropping 2 1/2 to 166 then advancing to 167. United States Steel gained 1/2 to 92, which was lost in the next few minutes. Marine Preferred yielded 1/2 to 101 1/2 and after advancing to 102 1/2 dropped below Saturday's close. Baldwin lost 1 1/2 to 68 1/2. Brooklyn opened at the low record of 18 1/2. Consolidated Gas continued weak, dropping one point to 88 1/2. Anaconda advanced 1/2 to 59 1/2. Southern Pacific declined 1/2 to 98 1/2.

After the irregular movements of the first fifteen minutes the market steadied with many issues rallying. United States Steel was in moderate supply from 92 to 90 1/2 and then rallied to 91 1/2. Consolidated Gas dropped 2 1/2 to 87 1/2. Cuba Cane Sugar made a new low record at 21 1/2. Mexican Petroleum, after selling at 164 1/2, rallied to 166 1/2 and Marine Preferred moved up 1 1/2 to 102 1/2.

The market closed irregular; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds heavy.

The bearers were Clarence Brophy, Michael Mooney, Walter Mooney and Arthur Kieran. The interment was in St. Peter's cemetery, Rosendale.

Anthony Gnatoski, for the past twenty-five years a resident of Kingston, died Sunday evening at the home of Gottleib Ewel, No. 11 Hooker street, after a short illness. Mr. Gnatoski has made his home with the Ewel family for a number of years past. The funeral will be held from the late residence Wednesday morning at 8:15 o'clock and from St. Peter's Church at 9 o'clock where a Requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of his soul. Interment in St. Peter's cemetery.

The funeral of Alice G. daughter of Anthony J. and Catherine Golden will be held from the family residence, 1241 Tinton avenue, New York city, on Tuesday, January 28th, at 3 a. m., thence to Church of St. Augustine, 167th street and Franklin avenue, at 8:30 o'clock, where a solemn Requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of her soul. The remains will be brought to this city, Tuesday, on the 2:25 West Shore train, for interment in St. Mary's cemetery. Deceased was a niece of Martin W. Golden of this city.

Mrs. Alice Grant-Jackson, wife of J. K. P. Jackson, died January 14 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles M. Allaben, in Roscoe, aged 68 years. She was a resident of Margaretville from 1879 until about a year ago, and her husband was for many years editor of the Utilitarian. He survives her with one son, Alex Grant-Jackson of Portland, Oregon, and two daughters, Mrs. Allaben above mentioned, and Miss Lulu Jackson of Margaretville. She also has one brother living, Powell M. Grant of Bloomville, and a sister, Mrs. Edward Klug of Merckville. The body was taken to Margaretville for burial and the funeral was held Friday morning from the M. E. Church there.

The funeral of Christopher A. Hurley, formerly of this city, who died at his home on Prospect avenue, Brooklyn after a few days' illness, was held from St. Joseph's church, where a Mass was offered for the repose of his soul. The remains arrived in this city Thursday on the 2:25 West Shore train. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Hurley was a Spanish war veteran and was a member of Court Hopkinson, No. 119, Foresters of America. At the time of Mr. Hurley's death he was employed as head shipping clerk for Geo. Singer of Wallabout Market. He is survived by his wife, Mary Van Hurley, two sisters, Miss Sarah Haradon, Richmond, Va., four brothers, Jeremiah, Dominick, George of Brooklyn, and Joseph C. Hurley of this city.

Cobos

Cobos berries are from the climbing plant called Piper Cobos, native of the West Indies, being extensively cultivated in Java and Sumatra. It is used as local stimulant in infusions and as a flavoring outside in mixtures and garnishes. It is valuable particularly in diseases of the stomach, from loss of appetite of the stomach. Frequently mistaken for cherries for their effect on the stomachs of children of the breed and larvae.

VICTOR OVER CHINESE DRAGON

American-Made Motor Trucks Are Winning Way to Popularity in Land of Conservation.

Way back before the year 1 they used to build high stone walls around the cities in China to keep out the elements of civilization. Today they are tearing down these walls, breaking them up into fine pieces, and using them to build highways that will enable them now progressive government to make the best use of the American-made motor trucks which China is beginning to utilize.

This is, perhaps, an striking comment on the economic and political changes that are taking place within this interesting country as has come out of China in a long time. The credit for such progressive policies is given in the main to Dr. George H. Morris, famous explorer and political adviser to the Chinese republic, an exchange states. Doctor Morris has succeeded in substituting a lot of new American ideas for the superstitions and conservatism of the one-time "heaven China." And now it is the motor truck that has gained his championship.

A considerable number of trucks are now in use in China, and they are doing everything required of them with remarkable efficiency, in spite of the difficulty of securing skilled drivers and competent mechanics in that part of the world.

GRATEFUL FOR COLD WATER

Thirsty Fighters Went on Their Way Blessing the Thoughtfulness of That Red Cross Worker.

There was plenty of water in X, but a tin mug of it was more deadly than a German machine gun. It's impossible to push two or three hundred thousand soldiers back and forth over a locality, especially when half of them are Germans and there isn't time to clean up after they have been defeated, and keep the water supply unaffected. And when, as is the case often, the water wasn't very pure to begin with, it's not at all wise to daily with the idea of drinking it. But what can you do when you've been out all day fighting and pursuing Germans and your canteen's empty and the roof of your month feels like a vulcanized scrubbing board?

That's the thought that came to a Red Cross field service man during the hottest fighting in August. It was hot in two senses. The bullets flew and the sun melted. And the Red Cross man took out his largest marble and filled it with water that was cool and purified. He kept it full all day and every soldier that passed that way had a drink of water. It was water they wanted just then. A little initiative on the part of one man made the soldiers as he himself put it "ah surdly grateful." But after struggling across fields and roads all day in the hot sun, well—well men do become awfully grateful for a drink of cool water.—From a Red Cross Scrapbook.

Smashing All Records

The smell of such musical German propaganda as "Die Wacht am Rhein" and "Deutschland, Uber Alles" was sounded the other day when more than 1,500 photograph records embracing these and similar airs were destroyed by a committee of women acting under the auspices of the National Phonograph Records Recruiting corps. The records were reduced to fragments with hammers at the corps headquarters. Aside from ridding the country of all German records that savor of propaganda, the primal purpose of the organization is the gathering up of all "blacker records" in the country for the front-line trenches. To this end a slacker drive for records will be launched next week.—New York Sun.

Practical Jimmy

My little cousin went away with his mother to visit his aunt in the country. His mother went in fear and trembling at the thought of how he would misbehave. But to her surprise he was angelic during the whole visit—always did as he was told and never misbehaved. As soon as he entered his own home, however, he was his natural self again.

"Why, Jimmy," she said, "you were so good while you were away, why do you start acting badly now?"

"What's home for?" asked Jimmy.—Chicago Tribune.

WORLD-PLACE FOR AMERICAN FARMING

Department of Agriculture Confident We Will Hold Our Place and Points Way to Wise Live-stock Policy and Necessary Average.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 21.—There is no cause for alarm as to the future ability of the United States to hold its due place in the trade of the world and especially as to the ability of American agriculture to maintain its position in the world readjustment that must follow the ending of the war. This is the judgment of the United States Department of Agriculture, expressed in a statement issued today from the office of the secretary.

A detailed survey of the agricultural situation shows the impossibility of forecasting the conditions that will obtain when the 1919 crops are matured, but it is pointed out that the markets of the world are coming up for American products and that a considerable demand from European countries for food-stuffs is almost assured for a year or more.

The signing of the armistice the Department of Agriculture points out, found the United States with fairly large stocks of foods but with smaller than usual stocks of feeds. In response to increased needs for food, many farmers plowed up permanent pastures and other grass lands needed for live stock and planted them to grain crops while others broke their rotation systems and planted the same land to grain several years in succession, thus reducing the fertility.

Would Increase Live Stock.

Now that farming is to be restored to a peace time basis, the Department of Agriculture thinks that many of the lands suitable for meadow or pasture should be reseeded to grass, that regular and satisfactory rotations of crops should be established, and that live stock should find a place on a larger number of farms. These readjustments appear to be necessary in order to meet the still urgent demand for meats and fats, as well as to restore sound farm practice.

A wise live-stock program, the department concludes after reviewing all conditions, will involve maintaining the number of horses and mules without material increase, a normal increase in the number of dairy cows and dairy products, a normal increase in the number of beef cattle, a conservative policy with respect to increasing the number of swine until the relative shortage and high price of feeds is overcome, an increase in sheep consistent with facilities for feeding and pasturing and the farmer's skill in handling them, and an increase in farm flocks of poultry where a minimum of purchased feed is required.

Many Factors Affect Wheat.

The indicated plant program is not quite so definite. The proper policy as to wheat depends upon a complicated set of conditions, but it seems certain that the farmers of the United States will be justified in maintaining their acreage of corn, oats and barley, large productions of which are necessary to maintain normal live-stock production. It appears desirable to increase the production of hay by about 25 per cent. The cotton situation depends largely upon the ability of the European countries to buy in average pre-war quantities, but the practice recommended is for the individual farmer to adjust his cotton acreage so as to have sufficient land available to produce enough food and feed for his family and live stock. An average acreage of potatoes is justified. Peanut production, abnormally stimulated by the demand for oil during the war, should be readjusted as a part of the crop economy in the territory to which it is adapted. The department urges those who intend to maintain home gardens to plan to meet the needs of the family rather than to produce crops for market.

Listed on Casualty List.

Today's casualty list issued by the war department contains one Ulster county name. Private Charles F. Bridgeman, emergency address, George Bridgeman, Montgomery Street, Sagorets, is listed as wounded, degree undetermined.

GLEANERS CLASS
HAS BIG NIGHT

Annual Banquet of Port Ewen Bible Class Featured by Feast of Good Things for Mind and Body.

On Friday night in the Sunday School room of the Port Ewen Reformed Church Robert Houghtaling's Bible class, The Gleaners, held their annual banquet, and voiced the sentiment of those present. The room was beautifully decorated and Old Glory was prominent everywhere. The table decorations were neat and in keeping with the occasion, the class color being very conspicuous. At 7:30 the members of the class and their families were invited to seats at the table, which was loaded with every good thing to satisfy the inner man. At the roll call at the feast it was noticeable that Herbert C. Hoover was absent. Robert Houghtaling, the teacher, gave an address of welcome to those present and every one who was present knew it was a genuine welcome extended to all. Certainly he can feel justly proud to be associated as a teacher of such a band of workers as The Gleaners, and his remarks so clearly and intellectually given, spoke the feelings and pride which filled his heart on this occasion.

After the dinner was over, Andrew M. Taylor was chosen as toastmaster, and he paid a tribute to the stars in the flag in a poem composed by the Hon. Thomas H. Heydon, president of the American Cross of Honor, Washington, D. C. The toastmaster chose for the first speaker of the evening Rev. Houghtaling, superintendent of the Sunday school, who spoke on the subject "Early Memories." This was the first time we had the pleasure of having Mr. Houghtaling with us and all present enjoyed his remarks greatly as they were both inspiring and uplifting.

The ladies, who had been and were so busy looking after the entertainment of their guests, asked the toastmaster to excuse them, which he consented to do and then announced as the last speaker our pastor, the Rev. L. A. Applebaum. Everyone present received what they expected and much more. Mr. Applebaum was able to print what was said in his address that every one might read it, but that being impossible we will tell his subject, "An Organized Bible Class," and say it was a masterpiece.

Next came the enjoyments of the evening, which were participated in by both old and young.

The committee on sports announced the first contest would be a potato race. The favor in this contest was won by Miss C. Low of Esopus.

The second contest was a peanut contest and the favor was won by Miss Sarah Houghtaling.

The third contest was a traveling contest and the favors in this contest were won by Mrs. Blanche Neice and Mrs. Houghtaling.

The fourth contest was a word contest and this favor was won by Mrs. L. Applebaum.

The fifth and last contest was a spelling backward contest. Twenty-eight entered this contest and the favor was secured by Mrs. Applebaum.

The enjoyable evening came to an end and all present declared it was "Gleaners' Night." Those present were Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Applebaum, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Houghtaling, Mr. and Mrs. Chester DeGraaf, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Van Kuren, Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Huthings, Mr. and Mrs. John Lammman, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Taylor, Mrs. Mary Neice, Mrs. Mary Beckwith, Miss Sarah Houghtaling, Mrs. Mary Hogan, Mrs. Charles Neice, Mrs. B. C. Ellsworth, Miss Edith Lammman, Miss Alice Neice, Miss C. Low, Miss Miriam Neice, Roland Neice, Lillian Neice, Bunny Galbreath, Betty Applebaum, John K. Applebaum.

MASQUERADE BALL OF MANNERCHOR

The annual masquerade ball of the Rondout Social Mannerchor will be held this evening in Mechanics' Hall on Henry street, and it is needless to say that it is one of the big social events of the season. Since the days of the old Washington Hall, the annual ball of the Mannerchor has been famous in the dancing history of the city, and the event is looked forward to each year with a glow of anticipation by all who enjoy a masquerade dance. The committee in charge of the annual event have promised an evening of unalloyed pleasure to those who attend and an exceptional program has been arranged. The grand march will be one of the features as in the past. Without doubt the dance hall will be filled with a gay crowd this evening. The usual prizes will be awarded and exceptionally fine music for dancing will be rendered.

BOY GUN TOTERS
SHOOT OUT LIGHTS

Two Boys Notified to Appear and Explain Dangerous Practice of Destroying Signal and Switch Lights Along U. & D. R. R.

This morning two youthful gun toters were summoned to appear before Judge Schirick and explain why they persisted in shooting out the signal and switch lights along the Ulster and Delaware railroad. The railroad company in the future will prosecute every boy caught. The offense is a state prison one.

The practice of shooting out the glass in the signal and switch lights is one of the most dangerous on record and is liable to lead to the wrecking of a train and the loss of human life. The boys especially like to shoot out the red glass. Unless the destruction of the signal was not in time it would undoubtedly lead to an engine running past a red signal and running his train off the track or crashing into another.

One of the boys summoned to appear this morning has been in trouble a number of times on charges of theft.

The two boys summoned to appear this morning were warned that it was their last chance and if found guilty again they would be committed to an institution.
